A special Day for Mum

Bindi had been working hard. At school Bindi had made a card and bought his mum a special present at the school’s Mother Day Stall. Bindi had made some plans for Mothers Day for his mum.

He was going to get up early and clean his room, make his bed and put his dirty cloths out to be washed. His mum was always asking him to do these things. Bindi thought he would do them this time without being asked.

After that he was going to go into the garden and pick some flowers. Bindi knew his mum loved bush flowers best but he also knew he mustn’t pick those ones because it was against the rules. He was then going to make mum breakfast and take it to her while she was still in bed.

Bindi had asked his dad to wake him on early on the morning so that he had plenty of time to do everything. Tomorrow was the day so he sat down and wrote himself a note.

My Mum’s Day list of things to do for mum

1st  make my bed
2nd  clean my room
3rd  take my dirty cloths out to the laundry
4th  pick some flowers from the garden and place them in a vase
5th  make mum bacon, eggs, tomatoes and toast for breakfast
6th  place on tray with flowers and present and take into mum

Dad had just woken Bindi up, the sun wasn’t even up yet. Bindi got out of bed and changed out of his PJ’s. He then made his bed, cleaned his room making sure everything was in its place, as Mum always said everything has a place. He then took all his dirty cloths, even the ones from under his bed and put them in the washing machine.

As Bindi went outside to pick some flowers for mum, he heard the Kookaburra’s call and knew the sun would be up soon so he had better hurry. After picking the flowers he raced inside and placed the flowers in a vase and the on the tray. He the cooked Bacon and eggs on the stove being careful not to burn himself. He then place bread in the toaster and when it popped he placed in on the plate for mum along with the bacon and eggs. He poured a cup of juice and placed that on the tray along with the present and off he went.

He gently woke mum up and gave he a big kiss saying Happy Mothers Day Mum’. Mum ate her breakfast and said it was the best she had ever had. Then she opened the present and found some beautiful tools for working in her garden, which she loved the most.

She gave Bindi the biggest hug he had ever, thanking him for the wonderful surprise. Bindi had never felt better and said that’s OK mum’.

The End